> OBITUARY. Dr. Henry M. Jeter,

Dr. JETER was born on the loth of Sept 1807, in Bedford county, Va., from which his parents, in his infancy, removed to Raleigh, N. C., where he was reared. After acquiring his profes sion he settled at Waynesboro, in the latter State, where for many years he followed his profession with reputation and success. He removed to Mississippi in 1840, and, after spending a year at Hernando, located on the place where he died. Dr. JETER never entered on the practice of medicine after he came to this State, but he aiways held his professional skill for the use of his friends and to meet the calls of charity and humanity. The afflicted poor never called on him in vain. His friends and relatives were many, and when they needed his attention he went to and remained with them as long as he could be of service. He was a true Christian gentleman and a devoted member of the Baptist Church for nearly forty years. As a man, Dr. JETER was of temperate habits, gentled disposition, and much given to hospitality. His manners were courteous and diguited, his friendship lasting and true. Devoted to his family and friends and intent on his own affairs, he provoked no rivalries and made to enemies. Having spent more than for years on the spot where he died, he has passed a way, followed by the Ceop grief of his family and friends and the reverence of all who knew him. nando, located on the place where he died. some interest in official circles, because of the corone's refusal to commit him to the county prison to await trial for homicide. The opinion prevairs that in spile of the lad's tender years he is amenable for he crime committed. The coroner takes a different view of the matter, and states it thus:
"The evidence was very clear. Trodden and a knife and threw it sfer Walker, tuffic log a spousible for murder, no matter what the lawyere may say. B-lieving this I wrote to the district attorney asking if I had the power to send the boy to the house of refuge. The only answer I received was that I could commit to the county prison. I knew that much myself, and decided to return him to Magistrate Pole, with a recommendation that he be sent to the house of refuge. I most positively refuse to send that boy to to the county prison, to stand trial, and will adhere to my determmeat.

St. Albans, Vr. August S - Regarding the situation of the Vermont National Bank and Trust Company, Treasurer Burges states that from what he knows of its condition the Trust Company will undoubtedly be able to pay depositors fully in time, but could not now stand any extensive ron. He could not now stand any extensive ron. He could not now stand any extensive ron. He could not make depositors secure, and declared all he granusctions to be straightforward. The whole questions appears to be whether Barlow's crediters will push Beainard to the wall or be lenient.

It am impeached, it is but a minepached, it is but a short time. Holding to my opinion that children of eight or nine years of age should be sent to the house of refuge, in place of a felion's cell, until the guilt or innocence is decided upon, I returned Trodden to the magistrate, as my powers would not permit me to dispose of the case in that way. Little Trodden was found at the Sixth District police station, where he awaits Magistrate Pole's return to the city.
